Witness Resents Insults'

Former Head of German Security Police Denies Signature is His NUERNBERG, April 12.—(P)—Ernest Kaltenbrunner complained, flushed and shaking, on the witness stand today against "constant insults" after a U. S. prosecutor had accused him of lying.

Col. John H. Amen raised the point when the former chief of the German security police denied the genuineness of the Kaltenbrunner signature on a letter to the mayor of Vienna relating to an order that Jews be moved to labor and death camps.

"It is not a fact that you simply ed about your signature, just as we are lying about everything else you have said here," Amen emended.

Kaltenbrunner retorted:

"These insults you are tossing at me, mister prosecutor, are insults of a kind I have become accustomed to. I have been insulted many times in interrogation in the last year. My mother, who died within the last year, was called a whore. I'm used to hearing that insult."

Launched Into Complaints

Kaltenbrunner then launched into a complaint to the International Military Tribunal, trying him and 21 other top Nazis on war crimes charges, that the preparation of his defense was hampered because he had not been able to confront witnesses.

Amen followed up this complaint by reading from the defendant's own statement an excerpt saying that he had been treated fairly and was given every consideration.

Kaltenbrunner concluded his testimony with the statement that he retained his job as lieutenant to Heinrich Himmler "because I considered it my duty to stay and get the wrong after I found out what conditions existed."

Long-Winded Narrative

That declaration capped a recital in which the former chief of the German security police sought to depict himself as a man without executive power and even without knowledge of the Gestapo's reign of terror. It was a long-winded narrative, which Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding member of the tribunal, frequently interrupted with impatience.

Kaltenbrunner represented himself as a man who repeatedly informed Hitler and Himmler of his plead for mercy toward the Jews. He maintained also that he worked repeatedly to establish negotiations for peace "immediately after I became convinced with our defeat at Stalingrad in February, 1943, that Germany had lost the war."

Controversy Swelling

By Charles A. Grumich

NEW YORK, April 12.—(P)—The mounting controversy over Franco government in Spain, which is expected to reach the floor of the United Nations security council next week, was welled today by an exiled Spanish Republican leader's assertion that Generalissimo Franco has 50,000 troops massed menacingly on the French frontier.

Dr. Fernando de los Rios, former dean of the University of Madrid, one-time ambassador to Washington and pre-civil war cabinet member, told a press conference last night he had documentary proof of the existence of Spain of "an aggressive spirit and an aggressive plan against France."

"Spain now has an army superior to that of France numerically and perhaps in the quality of armament, too," said de los Rios, who arrived here from Paris Wednesday as the exiled Republican regime's observer at the security council sessions.

House Democrats Call Party Caucus to Consider a 'Boner'

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—Democratic leaders in the house expressed belief today they had quieted down the latest flare-up by some party members against Democratic National headquarters.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) told a reporter "it is not likely" a party caucus will be held to consider what one Democratic lawmaker termed a "boner" by the national committee.

A group of the Democrats had called for the caucus.

The action to which they objected was a recent letter from Democratic headquarters to the party's county chairmen advising them to "select proper candidates" for congress.

The protesting Democrats circulated a petition describing the letter as a reflection on present office holders. It was the second intra-party clash within a fortnight.

Richard R. Nacy, executive vice chairman of the national committee, termed the whole affair an "error."

Congressman Would Not Call Boys Under 20

Believes They are Not Suitable as Occupation Forces

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military committee touched off a fight in the chamber today over continuing inductions of 18 and 19-year-old youths.

Opening debate on a committee recommendation for a 9-month extension of the draft law, May said he would offer an amendment to prohibit the induction of anyone under 20.

He said he would submit later army figures indicating that there is no need to keep on drafting teen-agers and would cite testimony by General Dwight Eisenhower that youths under 20 are "not suitable" as occupation forces.

The Kentuckian argued that the army's manpower requirements could be met without drafting teen-agers, asserting that during the month of March there were 73,000 voluntary enlistments and as many more are expected in April.

Should Induct Under Extension
Committee opponents of May's amendment have contended that since teen-agers were drafted for war service, they should continue to be inducted under an extension of the draft. Otherwise, they have argued, there may not be adequate replacements for men of long service.

Some members, notably Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) questioned the propriety of bringing up the draft legislation at all before the Easter recess starting late next week. House members, Hoffman claimed, should be given an opportunity to discuss the subject with their constituents during the recess.

Rep. Harden (D-N.C.) attacked the committee's inclusion of 18-year-olds in the draft extension measure and likewise challenged General Eisenhower's statement that the army is replacing them with older volunteers for occupation duty.

Recalls Prior Statements
"We all remember that during the war we were told by the army they wouldn't send any of these youngsters overseas until they had had a year of training, he declared. "Why, if we could not trust the army then—and developments showed we could not—should we trust the army now?"

May commented that the army never had promised a year's training in this country, but had merely said it would try to give each man from six months to a year of training before he was sent into combat.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—The senate approved today a 28-year program for trade relations with the republic of the Philippines, to be established July 4.

The measure now goes back to the house for action on an increase in sugar quotas.

As Republicans View It:

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The Republican party's case against Harry S. Truman during his first year in the White House is based on charges that the country is unsettled and uncertain of its future. This confusion is said to extend throughout the Truman administration.

The executive end of the administration is pictured as "The Truman Gang"—made up of "bad" appointees from Missouri or its friends.

Truman Lashes at Admirals And Others in Navy Who Oppose His Armed Forces Merger Program

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—

Twenty-five aircraft tail assemblies labeled as scrap by the Army Air Forces, were sold for $14 each to a St. Louis junk dealer, who received offers of $1,400 each for them from Canadian and South American aircraft manufacturers, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents testified in district court.

Disclosure of the transaction was made yesterday during the trial of James A. Lynch, charged with defrauding the government of $1,100 while supervisor of metal conservation for the McDonnell aircraft corporation.

Lynch pleaded guilty and was sentenced to eight months on each of nine charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

Five Refuse to Testify in Court Martial

Now Serving Time In London Prison; Fear Persecution

LONDON, April 12.—(P)—Pfc. Claris B. Smith testified at a United States Army court martial today that Staff Sgt. James M. Jones of Muskogee, Ok., struck him with a wooden club at the Litchfield detention camp in January, 1945.

There was no question that Mr. Truman had the gloves off when he pointedly notified the navy where he stood. He used the words propaganda and lobbying in speaking of continued opposition and said the public was interested in facts instead.

The president told his news conference yesterday that, while individual naval officers are entitled to voice their honest opinions, he expected both navy and war departments to support the unification policy when he, as commander-in-chief, once established it.

Mr. Truman's sharp words took the navy department completely by surprise. But lights burned long into the evening last night in the "topside" offices of the navy headquarters building. Forrestal, who had been ill at his home for several days, had no immediate comment. The same went for the uniformed high command.

Five other men summoned to testify against Jones, a former Litchfield guard, who is charged with ten counts of assault on Litchfield prisoners, refused to be witnesses yesterday, saying they feared "persecution."

Now Serving Sentences

All five are serving sentences in the London area guardhouse.

Col. Buhl Moore, president, abruptly closed the court, interrupting cross examination of Smith. Moore's action was protested by Lt. Morris C. McGee, defense counsel, who accused the Colonel of exhibiting bias by interrupting at a "critical moment in the defense cross examination."

McGee objected to Moore's continuing as head of the court, but his challenge was not sustained.

The Colonel explained he had interrupted the proceedings to discuss with his colleagues the actions of the unnamed spectator, which he said, bordered on contempt. He did not amplify his assertion.

Fourth Death in Highway Accident

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., April 12.—(P)—O. M. Turner, 62, Kansas City, Kas., died today of injuries suffered in a highway accident in which three Excelsior Springs high school girls lost their lives last Wednesday.

Turner was the driver of a transport truck involved in the accident.

Reporters inquired whether the navy would be allowed to continue to fight unification. Mr. Truman replied it was not justified in making a fight after he announced his decision in favor of unification.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the increase at retail will be "negligible—a fraction of a cent a pound."

Price Ceilings Up

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(P)—An OPA official said today that price ceilings for oranges, lemons and tangerines will be increased slightly next week.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the increase at retail will be "negligible—a fraction of a cent a pound."

Two New Chaplains At Sedalia Army Air Field

Two new chaplains have been assigned to the Sedalia Army Air Field. They are Captain Winnett E. Sutterfield, protestant chaplain, whose family is residing at Cape Girardeau, and Captain John M. Bradford, Catholic chaplain, whose home is in Chicago.

Memorandum of the Great President

The presidential views on merger opposition came when he was asked about the far-reaching unification bill recommended by a Senate military sub-committee after months of preparation.

Mr. Truman said he had read the bill, that it had a lot of good points but he was not passing upon legislation until Congress had acted upon it.

Reporters inquired whether the navy would be allowed to continue to fight unification. Mr. Truman replied it was not justified in making a fight after he announced his decision in favor of unification.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the increase at retail will be "negligible—a fraction of a cent a pound."

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, April 12 — It has now been one year since Harry Truman rushed down Pennsylvania avenue to a saddened White House and the awesome task of filling the shoes of Franklin Roosevelt.

A great deal has been written, and more will be, about the manner in which he has done that job. Among those close to Roosevelt there has also been speculation as to what would have happened if Senator Sam Jackson of Indiana had not rapped the gavel on that hot July night in Chicago, adjourning the Democratic convention just as the Wallace bandwagon seemed on the verge of rolling him into the vice presidency.

In other words, if Henry Wallace had been president of the United States, would the first year since Roosevelt's death have been much different? How much did Sam Jackson's gavel rapping tactics change the course of history?

Would History Have Been Different?

Some changes, of course, would have been certain. Sumner Welles today would be secretary of state, with Harold Young, not Bob Hannegan, the postmaster general. Wallace's press relations would have been worse than Truman's, his radio appeal to the public much more effective. Wallace would have slugged a few of his pet hates — photographers, would have had more professors instead of Missouri werewolves around him; would have had just as much labor trouble, though

War President's Words Live for Postwar America

Flanking the picture of Jo Davidson's famous bust of Franklin D. Roosevelt are these quotations from the late president's public utterances — words which show his confidence in the American way and his foresight into the problems of the postwar world.

might have been better at solving it.

Our difficulties with Russia would have been just as great, and it's doubtful whether the outcome would have been different. Wallace would have gone in for brain-trusts rather than poker parties, would not have supported the draft, and would have conducted more efficient administration. Having grown up in the cabinet (his father was secretary of agriculture under Harding) and having spent eight years in the cabinet himself, Wallace is recognized even by his enemies as one of the best administrators in government.

But regarding the basic problem of uniting the country, Wallace's troubles would have been the same as Truman's. His split with the southern bloc would have come earlier, but the end result would have been identical. Even had Roosevelt lived, this battle probably was inevitable.

In fact, when you read history, the conclusion is inescapable that most of the things now happening in the USA today would have happened anyway. Not even Roosevelt, had he lived, could have pushed the tide of history out of its customary channel — away from the trend to inflation, labor disputes, bickering with our one-time Allies, debates over the army, the inevitable readjustment which follows war.

Truman's Cabinet Meetings

The contrasts are sharp, however, between many Roosevelt methods and those of Harry Truman. Sharpest is revealed at the cabinet meetings.

Under Roosevelt, cabinet meetings were long and leisurely, sometimes lasting two hours, with everyone given plenty of time to get things off his chest. Roosevelt, it is true, frequently monopolized the conversation, loved to tell stories of the past. But no cabinet meeting ever ended if any cabinet member still had more he wanted to say.

Not so with Truman. He

ANN froze up inside, and with an effort brought her attention back to Millicent, who was still talking.

"You must have taught him that, Ann, and made your own contribution to American literature. I'll be a better seller, I'm sure."

Ann wondered what it was she had taught him, and then she heard his voice. "Hi Millie — your car's at the gate. The mechanic said it was just a — Oh, hullo, Ann. I didn't know you were back."

Millicent put her hat back on — at the proper angle, Ann noted, with detached admiration. She always had to have a mirror to do that. Then she stood up and said, "If my car's ready, I must run along. Thanks, Colin. Good-bye. Ann, it's been nice knowing you." She walked briskly down the path.

When she was out of sight, Colin turned to Ann and said, "Oh, Ann-girl, how I've missed you!" He swept her into his arms and kissed her suddenly averted cheek. Then he stood back to look at her. "What's wrong, my dear? You aren't ill, are you?" "No, I'm all right," Ann said, and thought detachedly that even her voice sounded frozen. All her anticipated pleasure at seeing Colin had evaporated, and her delighted joy in just being alive seemed to have turned to dust and ashes.

Only once did she speak on the way back to the house. "When is your book coming out, Colin?" "In October sometime."

"You always get your copies before they go on sale, don't you?" "Hm? Oh, sure."

Colin made no explanation of Millicent's presence in Port Drake, and Ann would have died rather than question him. For the first time she knew jealousy. "I have to go to him — something dreadful has happened — oh, Colin, I'm frightened!" she wailed.

"Ann, Ann — be reasonable. Nothing has happened to Jock. You've had a nightmare. Get into bed, child — you'll be ill —"

"I must go — it wasn't a dream. I tell you, something awful has happened — I must go to him —"

She was fumbling with her clothes, dogged determination on her face, but her hands were trembling.

"Ann — listen. I'll phone Jock. He'll probably want my scalp for getting him up at this time of night, but I'll phone him to prove to you he's all right. Then will you go back to bed?"

"Phone him," she said.

COLIN cursed himself for a fool as he put in the call. Nina's voice answered almost immediately. "Yes?"

"Nina — sorry to disturb you — this is Colin. How is Jock?" Even as he said it, he realized how silly it sounded.

"He'll live, I just got in from the hospital," Nina said wearily. Then, in sudden comprehension, "What do you know about it?"

"About what? Sorry, Nina. I'm being stupid. What is wrong with Jock?"

"He was in an automobile accident. He had been drinking. There was a girl with him. She's dead." Nina's voice was toneless, repeating facts for Colin's enlightenment.

"I'm sorry, Nina. Is there anything I can do?"

"You might drive in tomorrow."

"Do you want me tonight?"

"No, I'll take a sedative and get some sleep. Good night, Colin."

He turned from the phone to Ann. "Jock will be all right. He was hurt in an auto accident. I'll take you in to see him tomorrow," he said soothingly. "Now will you go to bed, Ann?"

She seemed a little dazed. "Now I'll go to bed," she said docilely.

Colin brought a glass of water and two small white tablets to Ann, and she took them unquestioningly. "Stay here, Colin," she said, reaching out her hand.

He turned out the light and sat there, holding her hand. Soon she slept, but there was no more sleep for him that night.

Truman — As Republicans View Him:

environments. On every occasion possible, Truman is linked with the Pendergast machine in Kansas City.

Truman's nominations and appointments that have been widely criticized are played up continuously. Ed Pauley, Commodore Vandamann, George Allen, John W. Snyder. The continued presence of Henry A. Wallace in the administration is viewed with alarm as a sign of the leftish tendencies hanging over from the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The legislative end of the Truman administration is represented as hopelessly divided between sound, conservative Democrats and radical New Dealers, left-wingers and fellow travelers. The hopeless conflict between these two elements in the party is responsible, say the Republicans, for a complete stall and inactivity in Congress at a time when the country needs firm, strong leadership.

Two-Way Stretch

The conflict between the White House and Congress as manifested by the unwillingness of Congress to go along with the President on many of the matters he has advocated, is pointed to as evidence that the Truman program is unsound and unworkable. In fact, the case has been summed up by saying that Harry Truman has no policy of his own — all he has is the policy handed down from the New Deal.

The efforts of Henry Wallace — "the last New Dealer" — to read out of the Democrat party the 109 Democratic Congressmen who voted for the Case bill on labor disputes, has given the Republicans one of the biggest lifts it has had in the past year. If Wallace could just succeed in this desire, Republicans would have on doubts at all about their ability to carry the elections of 1946 and 1948.

Some of Roosevelt's most important conferences took place at night. In the early days of the New Deal, the so-called brain-trust met with him almost every evening. Later, many of his strategy meetings lasted far into the night. Even his Sunday night suppers, at which Mrs. Roosevelt scrambled eggs in a chafing dish, featured guests who could contribute new governmental ideas.

Truman's routine is different. He has thrown into the discard the old White House tradition that the president of the United States does not go out to dinner.

His taste for spending evenings out is as insatiable as a housewife's on the maid's day off. After dinner he would rather relax at the piano or a poker game than study government reports.

And the men around him seem hand picked because their tastes are similar.

This two-way-stretch tactics of Democratic National Chairman and Postmaster General Robert W. Hannegan, first in defeating Wallace for the Vice-Presidential nomination in Chicago in 1944, then in embracing Wallace at the recent Jackson Day dinner to gain the support of his radical following in 1946, is to the Republicans more evidence that the Democrats have no principles — just an obsession to stay in office.

The link between the Democratic party and the CIO Political Action Committee's support has been a constant source for division from the Republicans. It has been carried over into an attack on the whole Truman labor policy.

This policy is said to be responsible for the wave of strikes which began last fall, slowing down production at a time when the country needed production more than anything else. And now that the AFL, CIO and John Lewis's United Mine Workers have turned against Truman's newest wage-price policy, the Republicans have turned their scorn on the administration.

He called a Labor-Management conference — at the original suggestion of Republican Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. When it failed, Truman quickly asked Congress for legislation to create fact-finding boards that could work towards ending industrial strife.

No Stalling

He had changed his wage-price policy three times to meet changing conditions in the tricky squalls of reconversion.

He had abolished the Office of Economic Stabilization. When he saw that it would be necessary to reestablish it, he had not hesitated to do so.

He had changed organization of surplus property disposal three times trying to get better working machinery.

Sometimes his decisions may have been wrong, but there had been no lack of decision, no stalling, no drifting. The man stood ready to take the consequences for any of his official acts.

If he had made a few appointments that had been open to question, he had made many more that were above criticism. Burton to the Supreme Court, Patterson to be Secretary of War, Byrnes to State, Vinson to Treasury, Krug to Interior, Bowles to the general statement, the Republicans might point to these:

The United States had failed to make good on its commitments for relief supplies to war-torn countries, and had had to call on Republican Herbert Hoover for aid.

The atomic bomb tests were announced — then postponed.

Right after VJ Day it was proposed that Lend-Lease debts be cancelled, but when this idea was criticized by Congress the policy was changed.

Three times it was announced that Stettinius would remain in office as Secretary of State. Then he was replaced by Byrnes.

It had become involved in settlement of the Palestine dispute, which had heretofore been a purely British official problem.

Argentine Failure

It had interfered in Argentina by trying to overthrow the Peron government. It had failed with sad loss of face.

It was criticized by both rightists and leftists for a do-nothing policy in Spain.

According to ex-Ambassador Pat Hurley, it had sought to follow the communist line in China.

American Lend-Lease equipment had been used against natives in the independence movement of the East Indies.

The proposed loan to Great Britain was criticized as economically unsound and a bad debt to boot.

Truman had declared there would be no more meetings of the Big Three, putting all responsibility into the lap of the infant United Nations Organization.

Truman, by his presence with Churchill on the platform at Fulton, Mo., had given tacit backing to the former British Prime Minister's appeal for closer association with the United Kingdom.

And relations with Russia had become so strained that some people were already talking fearfully of the possibility of another war.

Truman — As the Democrats View Him

economic report and the Office of War Mobilization issued its quarterly report as required by Congress. Both are admittedly partisan, administration sources.

Yet both told essentially the same story in text and chart.

Production was said to be at new high levels for both peace and war, at a rate of 150 billion dollars a year. Unemployment is about what it was in the boom year of 1929, before the crash. Employment is higher than it had ever been. Wage and salary payments are almost back to what they were on VJ Day, in spite of shorter hours and less overtime.

All but one of the big post-war adjustment labor disputes had been settled. Nine million workers had wage increases. Many prices had been raised to take account of increased costs and to serve as incentives for still more production. Yet the cost of living had advanced only one-half of one per cent since VJ Day.

Honest Program

In short, from the Democratic point of view, the economy was working and the nation had been brought through nearly eight months of its most difficult transition from war to

Must Get Satin Bathing Suit

LONDON, April 12—(P)—Next to beating Tami Maurilli in his United States debut at Madison Square Garden, New York, on May 13, Bruce Woodcock, England's heavyweight boxing champion, "simply must" get a satin bathing suit for his fiance, Nora Speight.

"She wants a suit like Actress Carol Landis wears," he smiled as he prepared to depart for New York today by airplane. "I've got to get it at all costs."

Woodcock and Nora, whom he courted on 16-mile training walks over the Derbyshire moors, plan to be married after he returns from New York.

The 25-year-old Woodcock, who unlike other British hopes of the past has never been knocked out, was hailed as the future heavyweight champion by his manager, Tom Hurst, at a farewell press conference.

Hurst's belief is founded on 24 successive victories since Woodcock turned professional in 1942. Only his second pro fight—a six rounder—went the limit. He has five knockouts and the rest are technical knockouts in two from to six rounds.

Gus M. Hodges of this city is at the head of one of the latest projects to develop the great sulphur mines of Louisiana. The company which was organized several weeks ago, is composed of Hodges, John L. Woolfolk of Kansas City and John W. Harrison and William Einstein of St. Louis. The company, which was organized under the name of "The American Sulphur and Oil Company of St. Louis," has just been incorporated under the laws of the state of Delaware, with a paid up capital of $2,000,000, with a provision to extend the capitalization to $10,000,000. Autos Damaged In A Collision

An automobile was overturned Thursday afternoon at approximately 5 o'clock when a 1939 Dodge coupe driven by Everett L. Cotten, 71 North Tenth street, Kansas City, Kas., struck a 1930 coach belonging to E. W. Biery, 515 East Fourteenth street.

Biery was driving west on Broadway and attempted to turn south on Massachusetts avenue when Cotten, driving east on Broadway struck Biery's car, turning it over.

The front bumper, grill and headlights of Cotten's car were damaged while the entire right side of Biery's car was battered. None was injured.

No charges were filed as difficulties were settled at the scene of the accident by the drivers.

Prices Of Buicks And Pontiacs Up

WASHINGTON, April 12—(P)—OPA announced Thursday that retail prices on new Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks, Cadillacs built prior to the General Motors strike will range from $66 to $147 higher than 1942 prices.

The agency said these prices reflect increases in wages and cost of materials incurred up to the fall of 1945. They do not take into account, OPA said, the 18½ cents hour wage increase recently granted by GM at the conclusion of the strike.

This means, officials said, that prices for these cars may be increased later.

Co-captains of the senior team were Dudley Luckett and Teddy Schwermer, while Mark Bergman acted as the captain of the under-classmen's team. The game was refereed by Coach Albert Steiner and P. A. Sillers.

Nylons Are Not Plentiful

By Arthur L. Edson

WASHINGTON, April 12—(P)—Hark to the sad tidings, ladies—the man says nylons for everyone are a year and a half away.

This mournful news, which should cause women's pages from coast to coast to be bordered in black, comes from Warren A. Ben, the man who peddles the yarn for every pair of nylons made in the U. S.

Ben heads nylon sales for the duPont Co., the only company which knows the magic nylon secret.

He told a Senate special committee on small business yesterday that duPont now turns more than 90 per cent of its nylon yarn over to hosiery manufacturers. This is enough to make 30,000,000 pairs of nylons each month.

He said duPont is trying to build a new plant, but is hampered by shortages. "If all goes well, we'll start production in February," he said. "Then we should be in full swing by mid-summer. I would say the supply won't be plentiful until the latter part of next year."

Dividend Declared

New Type of Half-Strike

JACKSON, Mich., April 12.—(P)—A new type of "half strike" had the Michigan labor mediation board baffled today.

About 100 employees of the Hinkley-Myers Manufacturing Co., Jackson, engaged in a wage dispute with the firm since last November, have never called a strike.

Instead, for the past three days they have reported for work every morning, but quit cold in mid-afternoon, according to Carlyle A. Gray, secretary of the mediation board.

"It's a new one on us," he admitted. "It's sort of a half-and-half strike."

"Have We Not All One Father? Hath Not One God Created Us?"

Palm Sunday

Tomorrow is Palm Sunday—the solemn prelude to Holy Week, the period during which Christendom commemorates the mystery of Christ's redeeming death. It is a day of joy: for this was the occasion when Jesus rode in honor into Jerusalem as crowds strewed palm leaves at His feet and cried out: "Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is He that cometh in the name of Lord." But also it is a day of sorrow: for the shadow of the Cross is already on the Holy City.

The procession of Palm Sunday is symbolic of the triumphal entry of Christ into His Church. The scene is glorious because so many came to pay homage to Jesus; but sorrowful because so very soon many who hail the radiant Christ will turn, scandalized, from the scourged and silent figure standing before Pilate in the garb of a fool.

The sadness of Palm Sunday remains with us because human nature is still so frail; because so many who follow Christ when life is sweet and pleasant turn from Him when fear, desolation or despair overtake them. This is a day, then, for heart-deep meditation.

It is a time to remember that faith must be a flame by night as well as by day; that if we are scandalized in Christ we shall lose Him, as so many did who failed to perceive the eternal Christ behind the broken, bleeding man on the gibbet of Calvary. It is a day to repent the times in our lives when we have strayed from the side of Christ; a day to resolve that we must go back to Him and stay forever.

"ARE SIN, DISEASE, AND DEATH REAL?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 14, 1946.

Golden Text: Psalms 43:5. Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible:

"For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved." (John 3:17). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sin, sickness, and death are comprised in human material belief, and belong not to the divine Mind. They are without a real origin or existence." (p. 286).

Sunday School Lesson

How the Friends of Jesus Responded. Scripture: Mark 1:16-20; 5:18-20; 10:46, 52; Luke 5:27-28

By William Gilroy, D. D.

A modern hymn-writer has written:

"I've found a Friend, O such a Friend;
He loved me ere I knew Him; He drew me with the cords of love,

And thus He bound me to Him."

That was precisely what happened among the first disciples, as they responded to the friendship of Jesus, and heard His call. Fishermen left their nets as He invited them to become fishers of men.

Levi, renamed Matthew, a publican (that is, a Roman tax-gatherer), despised for his work by many in the community, left his government job when Jesus said "Follow me." His name is honored in the first book of our New Testament.

He prepared a feast for Jesus in his house, and a great company of publicans and others were there. People repented to be religious were outraged by such a scene and they complained to the disciples, "Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?"

How many of us "good" religious people would react differently today, if the unrecognized Christ came into a modern community and attended a party with many persons of bad reputation? It is a common maxim that "a man is known by the company he keeps," but that isn't always a good criterion.

What an answer Jesus gave you up, just call 1144. Help us to have 300 Easter Sunday. Morning worship 10:30. Sermon subject, "Characteristics of a Christian." Children's church 11 o'clock. Christ Ambassadors 6:45. Chester Lyday, president. Children's service 7:00 o'clock. Orchestra concert 7:30 to 7:45. Evening evangelistic service 7:45. Sermon subject, "Now." As we had to postpone the water baptismal service last Sunday night, we will have it at the conclusion of the service this Sunday night. Wednesday night 7:45, praise and prayer service. Thursday morning 10 o'clock. Women's Missionary Council will meet at the church.

To His "responsible" critics! "They that are whole need not a physician; but they that are sick." He never implied that the publicans were better than the Pharisees. As a matter of fact, among the strict sect of the Pharisees were many fine and earnest people. What Jesus did imply was that the publicans needed Him most.

What a different world this might be, if all who profess to believe in Jesus were filled with the same zeal for helping those most in need — the sinful, the discouraged, the poor and needy, the careworn and heavily laden!

If we had been living when Levi gave his party, would we have been with Jesus among the guests? Or would we have been among those who looked in and found fault?

What sort of response do we make to the friendship of Jesus? Do we try to be friendly, as our Master was, to those who need understanding?

There were two sorts among the friends of Jesus. To some He granted the privilege of following Him and being in His company; to others He gave the harder task of going home and telling of Him in their own communities.

Those forced to leave Him did have the greater burden. Think, for example, of the poor demoniac whom Jesus healed. That man wanted above all things to be with Jesus, but the Master told him to go back to his unfriendly neighbors and tell them what had happened to him.

Sometimes it is in plain, unexciting tasks that we can best serve Jesus and show ourselves His friends.

ADVENTURES IN SPACE: The Story of Radar

COPR. 1946 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

No. 11: Space Ships

BY DAVID DIETZ

Noted Science Writer; Author of "Atomic Energy in the Coming Era," Etc.

(Written for NEA Service)

(1) Scientists some day will have at their command rockets powered by atomic energy and easily controlled by radar. Such a rocket might be sent on a round-trip journey to the moon. Scientists would not care to travel on the initial trial of this rocket but it could easily be equipped with automatic still and motion picture cameras and all sorts of scientific recording apparatus—thermometers and the like. It might even be equipped with a dragnet or scoop to bring back a sample scraping of the moon's surface.

(2) Eventually rockets may become space ships, carrying passengers to the distant planets. This will be a far more difficult job than sending a rocket to the moon, for while the moon is 240,000 miles away, the distance to the planets is measured in millions of miles. The planet nearest the sun is Mercury. Then comes Venus, then our own earth. Mars is next, then Jupiter, Saturn, and the others. The first space ships would set out for our nearest neighbors, Venus and Mars.

(3) When radar-controlled rocket ships begin traveling to Mars and Venus, the passengers will be in for some surprises, to say the least. Imagine, for example, that you are in a space ship or rocket 10,000,000 miles out from the earth, bound for the planet Mars. You are making the journey at a time when the two planets are closest to each other, and so you still have 26,000,000 miles to go. You would, therefore, be outside of the earth's gravitational field and not yet within the gravitational field of Mars.

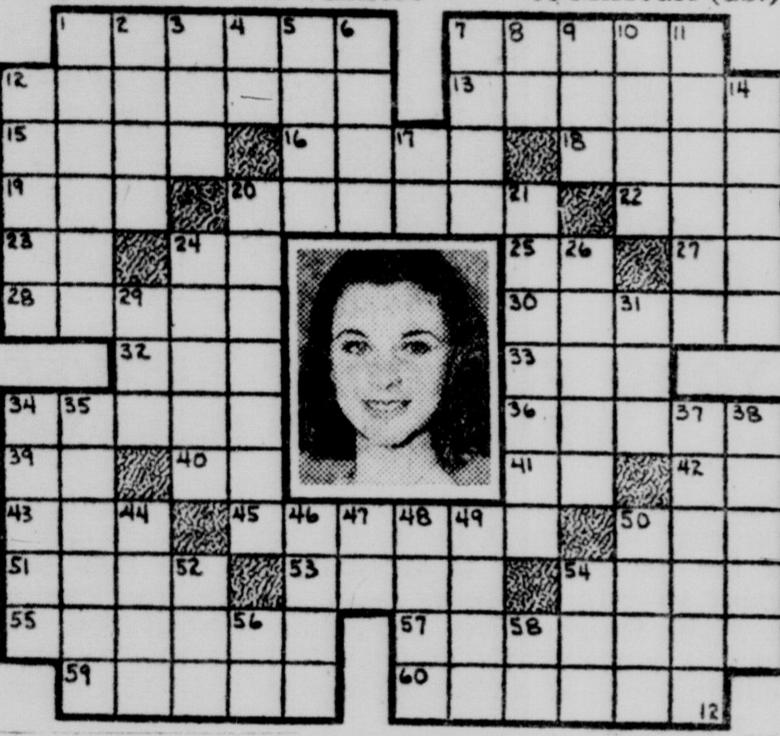

(4) As a matter of fact, "up" and "down" are without meaning in the rocket. If a passenger wishes to recline at ease on the ceiling, he is perfectly comfortable in what seems to you, sitting at the table, an upside-down position. Since there is no terrestrial gravity to be counteracted, he has no feeling of being upside-down. But if the rocket changes its speed or direction, these changes would give all the effect of a force of gravity for the moment.

Full Airing On Charge of Poland

Security Council Of U. N. Is In Recess Until Next Monday

NEW YORK, April 11—(P)—A majority of the United Nations Security Council lined up unofficially tonight in favor of a complete airing of Poland's accusation that the Franco regime of Spain is a menace to peace and is harboring German scientists experimenting on new, atomic-age weapons.

But what the Council will do after hearing Poland, it was indicated, depends entirely on the case Poland puts up.

The Security Council will remain in recess until Monday at 3 p. m. E.S.T., at which time the Russian demand that the Council erase the Iranian case from its records will be heard.

Iran has officially protested against the Russian proposal and asked the Council to keep tab on the Iranian situation at least until May 6, when the Russians have promised to have their troops out of Iran.

Amidst the maneuvers among the delegates on the Spanish case, a spokesman for the Spanish Republican government arrived to press the case of his government-in-exile.

He is Fernando De Los Rios, former foreign minister of the government in exile.

Whether he would be called on to speak to the Council itself arose as another issue. One U. N. observer pointed out that only two governments, Mexico and Poland, have "recognized" the government represented by De Los Rios and that it was not likely the Council would begin hearing from what the majority considered to be a faction of a country.

A United States spokesman indicated that this country would support a full hearing before the Council but that decision would be reserved until all the facts are heard.

Both the United States and Britain say Franco is a domestic Spanish problem but they are willing to hear the arguments before voting whether he is a menace to peace as charged by Poland.

A spokesman for the French foreign office in Paris said today that the French delegate, Henri Bonnet, has been instructed to support Poland's move.

The Soviet delegation had no comment.

The possibility that the Madrid government will be discussed by the top ranking representatives of the United States, France and Britain at the same time the Security Council is talking about it arose today.

Reliable sources in London said that U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had proposed a meeting of the ranking officials of the U. S., France and Britain soon to discuss Franco.

The conference likely would be held in London, although Secretary Byrnes is scheduled to go to Paris for a meeting on April 25 with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and Russia.

It was said Russia was not invited to the conference because of the Soviets have never recognized the Franco government.

Relax Controls for On Materials

WASHINGTON, April 11—(P)—The government tonight relaxed its construction controls to permit priority claims on materials for some non-veteran housing.

At the same time the civilian production administration and the national housing agency announced that present members of the armed forces will be eligible to buy or rent homes under the veterans emergency housing program.

Heretofore only discharged veterans could qualify to build or occupy homes constructed under the W. program to sell at $10,000 or less had or rent for $80 or under.

Missouri's Pension Rolls Still Increase

JEFFERSON CITY, April 11—(P)—Missouri's steadily growing old age pension rolls reached 103,857 during the current month, the state social security commission announced today in reporting that old persons on the rolls received a total of $2,863,602 for April.

That was $63,145 more than was paid out during March when there were 842 fewer persons on the rolls. The average check this month was for $27.57, 39 cents more than the average for March.

Two Killed In Crash Of Plane

WICHITA, Kas., April 11—(P)—Two Wichitans—the pilot, Carl D. Winstead, and a student pilot, Theodore Reichley—were killed in the crash of a light Cessna cabin plane near Viola in northwest Sumner county about 2:30 p. m. today.

Witnesses said the plane exploded and plummeted to the ground. Winstead's body fell clear of the plane, his parachute partly opened, investigating Sumner county officers reported. Reichley's body, found in the wreckage of the plane, was decapitated. Identification was from identification cards on the bodies.

Both were identified as employees of the Cessna Aircraft Company, Wichita.

SAAF on List Of Stations to Be Permanent

Rumors to Contrary Are Unfounded, Colonel States

Rumors, which have been circulating regarding the Sedalia Army Air Field, like others, are unfounded according to a statement by Col. Julius A. Kolb, the commanding officer of the SAAF.

The fact that a large number of the army personnel at the local base are being transferred to other stations for training purposes started such rumors.

Col. Kolb to quiet all rumors which gain footing with the announcement of transfers made the following statement:

"Recent changes in organizations and missions have been the basis upon which numerous rumors have gained footing.

"The mission previously assigned this base and units stationed hereon has been completed and the mission assigned to another Troop Carrier Base, Bergstrom Field, Texas, now has a high priority. In order to meet the requirements of their mission it became necessary to increase their personnel strength by transferring those with certain qualifications from other Troop Carrier bases into Bergstrom Field.

Will Build up Again

"In doing this it will reduce the strength in military personnel at this base to such an extent as to make it necessary to place the base and units hereon in a non-operational status until such time as sufficient personnel becomes available to build up again to operational status.

"The primary mission remains: 'Demobilization and Recruitment' along with making the best use of what we have, towards training 'on-the-job' and maintaining the capability of rapid expansion back to full operational status.

"Sedalia Army Air Field is on the list of stations which are to be permanent in the present AAF post-war planning program which like all post-war plans, are subject to congressional approval.

"Contrary to current rumors, there is no movement afoot to close the base."

To Assist Air Defense

Word has been received recently from headquarters, Third Air Force (Troop Carrier) of missions and changes in organization of all bases and units under its jurisdiction.

As before, the primary mission of all bases is demobilization and recruitment. In addition it is the function of all bases and units to assist in the air defense of the United States; participation in the joint air-ground training and field exercises with the army ground forces and the navy; activation, training and development of various experimental units as may be directed and the maintenance of the capability of rapid expansion and of training combat crews in time of national emergency.

Instead, he said, he and Assistant Secretary John W. Gibson with special conciliator Paul W. Fuller will hold meetings over the week-end with both sides in an effort to clear up additional points at issue.

President To Dedicate Shrine At Hyde Park

House, Gardens, And Lands Of FDR, To Nation

By ALLAN FISHER HYDE PARK, N. Y., April 11—(P)—President Truman tomorrow will dedicate as a national shrine the house, the gardens and the rolling acres which were home to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A 33-acre portion of the late President's estate, including the stone and stucco mansion where he was born and the century-old rose garden where he is buried, will be presented formally by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Interior Secretary J. A. Krug.

President Truman's dedicatory address will follow the presentation. Ceremonies will be broadcast from 2:30 to 3:00 p. m. (EST) over three national networks (NBC, CBS, ABC).

Radio coverage is expected to be the greatest for any event since V-J day. The British Broadcasting Company will carry the program to England and Europe. The state department will broadcast it to Latin America and later will re-broadcast it in 23 foreign languages throughout the world.

Prepare For Thousands

This quiet little Dutchess county village is preparing for an influx of thousands of people for the dedicatory ceremonies, which commemorate the first anniversary of Mr. Roosevelt's death.

President Truman will leave the White House about noon, fly to Stewart Field, part of the United States Military Academy Reservation at West Point, and will drive from there to Hyde Park. The President plans to return to Washington immediately after the ceremonies.

A special train from Washington to Hyde Park is expected to bring more than 700 guests of Secretary Krug, including members of the supreme court, the cabinet and congress as well as high-ranking army and navy officers and diplomatic representatives of many foreign nations. Army vehicles will take them to the estate.

Members of the public will be permitted to attend the open-air program on the lawn before the stone porch of the Roosevelt home.

The late President's house, which has been restored by the Interior Department in strict accord with photographs taken in 1940, will not be open to the public tomorrow, but will be there-after.

Expect To Renew Negotiations

WASHINGTON, April 11—(P)—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach tonight expressed confidence he could bring John L. Lewis and bituminous coal operators together next week for renewal of contract negotiations which the union suddenly broke off yesterday.

Schwellenbach, after a two hour conference with the operators and a separate 140 minute conference with Lewis and his United Mine Workers, said the time is not yet ripe for appealing to the parties in the dispute to resume negotiations immediately.

The secretary said that if he should ask the operators and miners to meet tomorrow they would do so, but "they would sit there for five weeks or more and not actually get together."

Instead, he said, he and Assistant Secretary John W. Gibson with special conciliator Paul W. Fuller will hold meetings over the week-end with both sides in an effort to clear up additional points at issue.

U. S. Be Seven Billions Richer

WASHINGTON, April 11—(P)—President Truman said today the government will be nearly $7,000,000,000 richer than it expected on next June 30 and that it is the aim to balance the budget for 1947.

By that he meant the fiscal year ending June 30, 1947.

To a news conference and in a formal statement, Mr. Truman cited prospects for larger receipts and lower expenditures in the current fiscal year.

He spoke for continuation of the existing tax rate and said it is necessary to avoid non-essential expenditures.

The group, destined for service in Europe and the Pacific, will be trained at a newly established school at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

The first class begins May 10.

Food Prospects Improved

Order To Limit Grain Stocks Of Distillers

WASHINGTON, April 11—(P)—President Truman reported an improvement in world food prospects today as the government and congress moved to jar loose meat and grain in this country.

The President told his news conference that if we can get by for the next 90 days everything will go well. As heartening factors he cited rains in India, improved spring and winter wheat prospects in this country and the expectation of greater production in North Africa and France.

The house agriculture committee recommended higher meat prices in hopes of curbing the black market and the agriculture department slapped an order designed to limit distiller's grain stocks and require them to turn loose any grain they have above the limit. Officials said they had no knowledge that there are any hoards.

The order, effective next Monday, restricts the amount of grain that whiskey makers may hold to a 7½ days' supply. If they have more than that on hand they must report it, although officials said they were not aware of any hoarded stocks.

As a penalty, the order provides that any distiller having more than the allowable supply after Monday is barred from using any grain or grain product in the manufacture of beverage alcohol or distilled spirits.

Keep Body For Time

He said he had planned to send the body to St. Louis for cremation but now intended to keep the body in Columbia "at least for a time."

Spencer said it appeared mandatory that he further investigate the matter. "In view of the verdict of the coroner's jury," he declared, "that Mrs. Zech died from arsenic poisoning, it seems mandatory that I do everything in my power as an individual and as the prosecuting attorney to clear up the matter. There seems to be no evidence at this time as to how the poison was administered," he added.

"I have been assured the full cooperation of the family of Mrs. Zech in my investigation," he said.

In the court room for the hearing with their step-father were Mrs. Corrine Bromberger, Columbia, and Robert Aldridge, Chicago. Mrs. Zech's children.

Coroner E. J. Ward, presided at the inquest.

Special Road District Election On April 26

The Pettis county court Thursday set the special election for Green Ridge road district 40 for Friday, April 26. It is to be held at the A. N. Baker Lumber Yard office. The levy to be voted is 15¢ (in excess) per $100 valuation.

The agency said this "will tend to bring available supplies nearer into balance with demand."

OPA said the suspension had been approved by the Office of Economic Stabilization.

It added that the agriculture department estimates that this year's strawberry crop will be 35 to 40 percent larger than the 1945 crop.

The agency said this "will tend to bring available supplies nearer into balance with demand."

OPA said the "large amount of administrative work" necessary to control fresh berry prices is "disproportionate to the results obtained."

The agency emphasized that it will watch market trends on sales of these berries and "be prepared to reinstate price control should prices rise unduly."

The agency said it is now studying the advisability of lifting price ceilings on processed berries and berry products, and that a decision will be announced shortly.

'Run Of White House' For Guests Of Mrs. Truman

By VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER WASHINGTON, April 11—(P)—Ten twittering ladies from Independence (Missouri, of course) had the run of the White House today—swimming pool, Lincoln bedroom and even a peek at the President's office.

And don't think the members of Mrs. Truman's bridge club weren't aflutter—from the tips of their brand-new hats to the toes of their nylons.

(Better not spread it around Independence, but Mrs. John Hutchison says that's where the nylons came from. Local merchants, not to have their customers out-shine in Washington, dived under the counter and came up with the goods.)

What's it like—a bridge club meeting at the White House? From a news conference by Mrs. Truman's secretaries and a brief handshake with the ladies themselves on the white house porch, the story pieces together something like this:

"The girls" fill the White House right up to the eaves. They chose up roommates and scattered around, some on the second floor, some on the third.

Nobody will say who has the Lincoln bedroom. And they haven't seen a single ghost—yet.

Secretaries said they didn't know who did pressing and button-sewing for 10 guests—but one member confided "some little gremlin" did hers.

Promised A Cruise

The White House pool is ready and waiting if anybody's in the mood for a dip. Mrs. Frank Wal-

2-4-D Chemical Save Many Hours of Work

Classed As Weed Killer, But Does Not Harm All

Of the many wartime developments in chemistry one of the most promising from the standpoint of saving the ordinary citizen from many hours of hard work, is an organic chemical known as 2-4-D. This substance is generally classed as a weed killer, but its amazing ability to selectively kill some weeds and plants while not harming others makes it one of the outstanding discoveries of the century.

For example: A Kentucky bluegrass lawn can be sprayed with 2-4-D and while the grass is not in the least hurt by the spray, the dandelions, daisies, ragweed, pigweeds and many other types of weeds are killed out entirely.

While 2-4-D sounds almost too good to be true, a little consideration of the theory of this product easily explains it selectivity.

Chemically known as 2-4-dichlorphenoxyacetic, it is really a plant hormone. When the plants which are active to this particular hormone are sprayed, it affects their growth factor to such an extent that the root dies trying to keep up with the leaves. It is just as simple as that.

Controls Weeds

As a general guide this hormone has little or no effect on most grasses. It will kill most broad-leaved plants and deep rooted perennials. For this reason it is expected to come into widespread use for control of weeds in lawns.

As to the cost of the product it is expected to be well within the reach of the average citizen. While 2-4-D itself is a relatively expensive substance, it is effective in very low dilutions.

Another side of 2-4-D which is promising is the fact that it does not seem to have any special danger for human beings or animals. In very recent experimental work cows were turned to pasture in lands that had been treated with the substance. No ill effects were reported. It, therefore, appears that its use in pasture lands is perfectly safe. Also it is non-corrosive and noninflammable.

Does Not Affect Soil

It is also claimed generally that 2-4-D does not hurt or sterilize soil, although this must be said with some reservations. If it is sprayed on bare soil the ground may be affected for a time, although how long the effect lasts is still unknown.

A great deal of work is still being carried on all over the country on 2-4-D. Just how effective it is going to be as a general weed killer is still in the experimental stage to a great extent.

It looks very encouraging for the control of such pest plants as poison ivy, morning glory, honeysuckle, various types of thistle, chickweed, wintercress, narrowleaf plantain, lawn pennycress, and many other types of weeds. However, it has not been found effective on crabgrass, netgrass, Johnson grass or other weedy grasses.

Generally the position of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the North Central States Weed Control Committee, both of which have tested the product, is that as an agricultural weed killer it looks promising, but still must be proved. As a weed killer for lawns it is approved.

Miss Blanche Kay Retires After 30 Years at Swifts

Miss Blanche Kay was smiling Saturday a little more than usual. It was a day of reward for many years of faithful service. Saturday Miss Kay completed her last day's work after almost thirty years, for Swift and company in Sedalia and now has been pensioned.

Miss Blanche Kay

Friday night the employees of the company gave a party in her honor at the plant. About 50 attended, bringing with them food of all kinds.

"As I looked down that long table," Miss Kay said, "I thought how wonderful it is to have friends."

Saturday the employees presented her with a 17-jewel Bulova watch, something that will remind her every minute of the day of those friends with whom she worked so long.

Started 30 Years Ago

It was nearly 30 years ago that Miss Kay started to work for the Swift company in Sedalia at which time George H. Trader was manager. It was in the old plant that has since burned down.

"I have been through fire and flood with Swifts," she said laughingly, referring to the heavy rain that flooded the plant several years ago causing thousands of dollars damage.

Miss Kay worked at the old plant seven years and in the new plant twenty-three years. "I worked under five managers, Mr. Trader, L. M. Gifford, Chester Kutz, N. E. Randall and R. L. Wiske, and five foremen, Bill Riley, Elmo Rosenquist, Ed Scott, Bill Hyde and the present foreman, H. Ferguson, and I liked him all the time," she said.

"I started in at 15¢ an hour for a fifty-four hour week and made $8.35 a week. Now Swift employees on the same work make that much in two days," she said.

"I had several raises," she said, "Four under Mr. Trader."

Miss Kay was forelady in the print room.

"It pays to stay on the job," Miss Kay said. "I'm not on the payroll anymore but I can still boost the products."

When asked what she intended to do now she replied, "I am going to rest and now I will have plenty of time for my friends."

Miss Kay and her mother, Mrs. W. R. Kay, who is ninety-one years old, reside with their sister and daughter, Mrs. W. M. Allicorn and Mr. Allicorn, at 605 South Osage avenue.

Mrs. Maude Hall Jones Compiles Book Honoring Brother, T. C. Hall

"The Philosophy of Thomas C. Hall" is the title of an attractive and interesting book compiled by Mrs. Hall's sister, Mrs. Maude Hall Jones, of Moberly, which is proving interesting reading to friends of Mr. Hall, well known and well liked in Sedalia, where he spent many happy days quite a few of them at the home of his niece, Mrs. Charles W. Green, whose husband, Charles W. Green, was for many years secretary of the Missouri state fair.

One of the recipients of the booklet is Mr. George H. Trader, who became acquainted with Mr. Hall when Mr. Trader was in school in Columbia, attending the university, and Mr. Hall was in business. That friendship has continued through the years.

Mr. Hall was born in Audrain county, Mo., and lived in the three adjoining counties, Audrain, Boone and Randolph, all his life.

Mrs. Hall's Motives

Mrs. Hall writes her main motive in compiling the book for her brother is to awaken and put into print some of that smouldering sentiment that has been in her heart for many years. "He has been a father to me," she writes, "my father passing away when I was a small child, so good, kind and thoughtful of me."

The book is divided into anecdotes, quips, and "In Appreciation," the latter tributes to Mr. Hall by prominent residents of the state and elsewhere, who have been his friends for years.

Goal Of $3,000 By May First

The fund for Cpl. William C. Ecker, sponsored by the War Mothers club No. 2, has now reached $2,712.49 and the club hopes that it will be able to close the campaign the first of May with a sum of $3,000.

At a meeting of the War Mothers' club No. 2, at the armory this week, it was moved and seconded that the campaign for this very worthy fund be completed by the close of the meeting year, so that a board of trustees may be set up.

Lucinda Watson, the former Lucy Watson, came over on a "brides' boat" and was in New York by Mr. Bagby, who had been returned to this country about seven months ago, and since that time been released from the army.

Stopped Enroute Home

They visited in New York, then went to Devon, Pa., where they spent five days with relatives, to Mount Sterling, Ky., to visit Mr. Bagby's grandmother's aunt, Mrs. Belle Rice. In Mount Sterling they were joined for the return trip home, by Mr. Bagby's grandmother, Mrs. Ida S. Bagby, 1001 West Broadway, who had been visiting there. Enroute to Sedalia they stopped for short visits with relatives in St. Louis and Alton, Ill.

Although this is Mrs. Bagby's first time in America she is perfectly at home, and though reading is familiar with the country and its customs. She speaks with no brough, has a keen sense of humor, and knows she is going to be very happy here.

Felt Sorry For Those Starving "I expect to be homesick," she said, "in fact I've already been home sick, or I'll say lovesick because I think I'm just homesick for my mother."

"You Americans," said Mrs. Bagby, "have so much to be thankful for. You make me sick when I think of the starving people in Europe. In the British Isles everything is rationed, but with strict rationing I have never been hungry and I'd have been willing to have undergone more stringent rationing to help save food for those who were starving in other countries."

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Bagby spent a few days in Kansas City. The plaza district, she states, is one of the most attractive places she has seen since her arrival in the country.

Mrs. Bagby has already met and made friends with numerous Sedilians.

Sedalia Schools Observe Arbor Day, Plant Trees

Arbor Day was observed in Sedalia by the Junior Garden clubs by planting trees at the various schools in memory of the boys who gave their lives in the service of their country. A bottle, in which the names of the boys were sealed were placed at the root of each tree planted.

Mrs. Arthur Glang, State Junior Garden chairman, was a special guest at the Arbor Day program of Friday afternoon at Jefferson school which is sponsored by Circle No. 3, and told of how Arbor Day originated.

The idea of setting apart one day each year for planting trees came from a man who lived on the treeless plains of Nebraska, J. Sterling Morton, and realizing what value, beauty and comfort spaces of his state, he persuaded the authorities of Nebraska to proclaim the first Arbor Day, April 22, 1872. Arbor Day is now observed in most states. The date varies, depending on the climate. The aim is to promote tree planting and care, to arouse interest in forest improvement and protection of fire.

Indictments Delayed a Short Time

Failure of Russians to Be in Tokyo

TOKYO, April 11.—(P)—Failure of the long-awaited Russian prosecution staff to arrive in Tokyo brought a new delay tonight in the return of indictments against former Premier Hideki Tojo and other big name Japanese awaiting war criminal trials.

The international military tribunal announced officially that the indictments will be delayed "a short time," instead of being returned Monday as planned.

The delay was believed to have been suggested by General MacArthur's headquarters, which is anxious to make certain that the Russians are not put in a position where they can protest later that the indictments did not express their views.

Much Speculation

There is much speculation whether the Russians will seek to delay the indictments until they do extensive investigating of their own, inasmuch as they are bringing a prosecution staff of 70 from Moscow. It also is considered possible they might disagree on the charges to be made against individuals or might ask that admissions be made to the list to be tried.

The Soviet delegation, due by ship for several days, is expected to arrive by Saturday. How long a delay will be required was not indicated.

Want Emperor Tried

MOSCOW, April 11.—(P)—Pravda Commentator Boris Gorbatenko said today the "average" Japanese told him when he was in Tokyo recently that Emperor Hirohito should be tried as a war criminal along with former Premier Hideki Tojo.

The Communist party organ's commentator declared, however, that the emperor has many defenders, "and not only in Japan."

Gorbatenko said the only political party advocating the elimination of the emperor is the communist party. He added that foreign observers took the point of view that the emperor should go and said the American press referred to the emperor as war criminal number one.

Awards for Civic Service

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Representative Monroney (D-Oka.) today were presented with the first annual Collier's awards for distinguished congressional service.

President Truman presented the awards, consisting of a silver plaque and $10,000 each, in a White House ceremony. The cash is to be turned over to a worthy public cause designated by the winners.

Owen D. Young, chairman of a national award jury, announced the winners just prior to the presentation.

Vandenberg was cited "for his ability to rise above partisan politics in welding together the Senate in support of American participation in world affairs."

Monroney was designated for "fostering legislation intended to reform the organization and procedures of congress" and for his work in behalf of American participation in the Breton Woods plan and the United Nations organization.

Earthquakes Are Recorded

WESTON, Mass., April 11.—(P)—A very strong earthquake, probably in Rumania, which seismologists said was as severe as the one that caused the recent tidal wave off Alaska, was recorded at Weston college at 9:03:25 p. m. (EST) yesterday, the Rev. Daniel Linehan, S. J., reported.

Father Linehan said a second phase of the shock was recorded at 9:12:27 p. m. and that the disturbance was about 4,745 miles from Boston, probably in Rumania. It lasted about three hours.

In New York City the Rev. Joseph Lynch, Fordham University seismologist, said two "quite severe" earthquakes were recorded here at 9:03:36 and 9:12:45 p. m. (EST) yesterday.

He said the shocks were about 4,750 miles from New York, but the direction was not determinable.

Want Trees as War Memorials

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—A suggestion by Allen Oliver, president of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, that a giant forest tree be dedicated as a living memorial to every person who served in World War II, reached the House and Senate in the form of bills yesterday.

Rep. Zimmerman (D-Mo.) offered the House bill, which would provide for designation of one of the national forests in Missouri as a memorial. Plaques bearing names, address and serial numbers of all veterans would be attached to trees. The Senate measure was introduced by Senator

Afraid She Would Not Recognize Husband in America

SYDNEY, Australia, April 11.—(P)—An unidentified Australian war bride told United States army officials today she had known her husband only a week when she married him three years ago and did not believe she would be able to recognize him in America.

She was one of 18 wives of American servicemen who cancelled passage to the United States. Some were ill; others were "afraid" to leave Australia.

Stork Wins in Race to Calif.

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—(P)—A race with the stork from Sydney, Australia to California, Mo., ended today with the birth of a son to Mrs. Truman Allee, a war bride.

Mrs. Allee, whose husband is a sailor, was taken from a train this morning and admitted to General Hospital. With her other son, 18-months-old Raymond, she left Australia last month for California the home of Allee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Allee.

The sailor father was not on hand. He had arranged to leave home to meet his wife, but delays en route slowed her down. He returned yesterday to the naval base at Norfolk, Va., his leave nearing an end.

Talk Monument For Bolivar

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—Bolivar, Mo., figured in international discussions yesterday.

Emerging from a talk with President Truman, Alfredo Machado Hernandez, the new ambassador from Venezuela, reported:

"We talked about the idea of erecting a monument to Simon Bolivar at Bolivar, Mo. The President was very sympathetic to the idea, and said he had favored it for years. He added that the Missouri Governor was very much interested."

In exchange, the diplomat reported, the President thought that the U. S. Government or some organization should present a statue of an important American to Venezuela.

Still In Favor Of Anti-Poll Tax

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(P)—President Truman said today he still favors "both federal and state action" on anti-poll tax legislation, FEPC "and all similar legislation."

In a statement read to his news conference, Mr. Truman said his assertion at Chicago Saturday that the states would have to work out a solution to poll tax problems did not represent a change in his position.

The President's formal statement (about 125):

"I have not changed my position on federal anti-poll tax legislation. I am still in favor of federal legislation. I voted for cloture on this issue in the senate and I would do so again if I were a senator."

"However, I also favor state action. There is no contradiction between federal and state action on this matter. While the federal anti-poll legislation has been pending in the congress, several states have abandoned the poll tax. This is a great step forward and I hope more states will see fit to change their poll tax laws."

"It may well be that the possibility of federal action has stimulated state action. This is often the case with state and local legislation. For example, while we have been pressing for federal action on fair employment practice legislation, several states and a number of municipalities have adopted fair employment practice acts. Federal legislation and state legislation should supplement one another wherever possible. I am in favor of both federal and state action on anti-poll tax legislation, FEPC and all similar legislation."

Conservatives Pressed Close In Japan Vote

Close Race For Domination Of The Next Diet

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO, Friday, April 12.—(P)—With half the ballots counted, Social Democrats, with surprising strength, were still pressing Japan's two major conservative parties today in a close race for domination of the next Diet. Observers began to forecast a tri-party coalition government.

Of the first 206 candidates assured of election, 45 were Progressives, 49 Liberals, 42 Social Democrats, 43 Independent candidates, four Communists and 19 of minor parties. Eight winners were women. There are 468 Diet seats to be filled.

Returns indicated the nationwide vote would average about 72 per cent of all eligibles.

Political jockeying for power began immediately, with leaders of two parties reiterating demands for Premier Shidehara's resignation and disclaiming any intention of joining him in a coalition cabinet. Normally, however, such statements in Japan are regarded as efforts to obtain greater representation in such a coalition.

Socialists had been tabbed early among the big three political parties, but they were expected to trail by a greater margin than returns thus far have indicated. They gained unexpectedly in the cities.

Three Ministers Elected

All three of the Shidehara ministers running for the house of representatives were definitely elected. They are Welfare Minister Hitoshi Ashida and Liberal ministers without portfolio Marashashi and Tayashige Ishiguro.

Sanno Nosaka, top-drawing Communist, polled 80,000 votes in incomplete returns from Tokyo's first district, placing third highest among winners there. Ichiro Hatazawa, president of the Liberal party, led the district winners with 106,000. Second was demure Miss Shizue Yamaguchi, 30, a dietician in her father's factory, who campaigned because it was "a patriotic duty" and polled 85,000 votes.

The two oldest veterans of the house continued to top all individual vote records of all districts, however. Yukio Ozaki, 87, polled 130,000 votes—while maintaining that "I'm too old and too deaf to serve," and refusing to budge from his house for any sort of campaign. Takao Saito, old-time progressive leader, polled 125,000.

It remained unclear just what behind-the-scenes political arrangement would be made concerning the Shidehara cabinet. Narahashi, its secretary, said yesterday it would remain in office until the new Diet meets May 10. Some papers predicted it might resign in a few days.

Against Rigid Price Control

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—(P)—In a question and answer session last night before the Kansas City Purchasing Agents' Association, Judge John Caskie Collet, the nation's former economic stabilizer, said he could not agree with the theory of a rigid price line, "a control that must be held regardless of inequities and injustice."

He said he was "not much of a reformer" and described himself as against regimentation and planned economy.

He had found, he declared, that cabinet members and heads of large agencies were sound and constructive thinkers, but Washington "is sprinkled liberally with little groups of fanatics" who sometimes issue statements which do not accurately reflect the view of the top men.

"I have not changed my position on federal anti-poll tax legislation. I am still in favor of federal legislation. I voted for cloture on this issue in the senate and I would do so again if I were a senator."

"However, I also favor state action. There is no contradiction between federal and state action on this matter. Peter Wirol

Peter Wirol, veteran of World War I, died at the Veterans' hospital at Wadsworth, Kas., at 3:35 o'clock Wednesday evening, where he had been a patient for the past two years.

Wood and Chambers last Tuesday were charged with forgery of check at Bonnville and both released on bonds to appear on April 24. Chambers, however, had no connection with the forging of any of the checks, nor did he have any of the money obtained through them. This was verified by Wood, who passed the check at Bonnville.

Wood Implicates Another

Peter Wirol, veteran of World War I, died at the Veterans' hospital at Wadsworth, Kas., at 3:35 o'clock Wednesday evening, where he had been a patient for the past two years.

Mr. Wirol was born in Paris, France, on July 4, 1897. He was married to Mrs. Grace Steely at Carrollton, Mo., in 1939. For several years he was a cook at the Pacific cafe in Sedalia.

Surviving is his wife, who resides at the Milner hotel in this city.

Mrs. Wirol, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Bettise, former Sedalian, now of Sedan, Kas., and her sister, Mrs. W. A. Stone, Route 1, Sedalia, were all with him when he died.

Mrs. Wirol returned to Sedalia and will leave again this morning for Wadsworth.

Wood Implicates Another

Wood implicated Parsley as being the boy with him at Springfield. He also implicated Parsley with being with him when other checks were passed. Chambers told officers he tried to talk Wood out of passing the check at Bonnville and when he insisted on doing it, he walked down the street away from him.

It was said Wood found some discharge papers belonging to a youth at Houstonia and used his name in passing the check at Bonnville.
